

- 15 -

Abstract

A method for the combinatorial development of materials in which heat changes caused by chemical or physical processes with materials of combinatorial libraries are visualized using heat difference images from an infrared camera. As said libraries, all kinds of material libraries, such as heterogeneous or homogeneous catalysts or enzymes, can be used.

[illegible]